The Department of Justice has sent to all officers and employes of the department a circular regarding the enforcement of the civil service laws that is likely to create a good deal of discussion, inasmuch as in many states marshals and district attorneys are either at the head of the republi-in political work in their party. The circular has just been sent out, and refers to Civil Service Commission Pleased.

This statement of attitude on the part of the President's legal adviser is most gratifying to the officials of the civil service commission. It is believed that it forecasts a general expression on the part of the administration which will make it impossible for campaign committees to conduct any levy, however adroit, on the employes of the executive departments.

Commissioner Foulke said this morning:

"We believe that the moral effect of this order will be much greater than would appear at first glance.

"It comes from the law office of the national government. It is phrased in firm, vigorous terms." It explicitly states that 'persons in the government service' under that department should not make themselves unduly prominent as campaigners or serve as chairmen of political committees.

The commission has no idea that the sub-ordinates of the Department of Justice are to hold entirely aloof from the obligations of their franchise. My understanding is that the Attorney General's order only excludes them from serving as chairmen of committees and does not bar them from acting as committeemen. But the earlier attitude of the department is restated and reinforced, and we believe the general effect of that position will be pronounced."

FINE WEATHER AND BIG CROWD Last Day at Benning Was an Ideal One One for Racing.

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star. BENNING RACE TRACK, D. C., November 30.-Good weather and the last day of the meeting attracted a great crowd to the Benning track this afternoon. The spectators began arriving early and the ticket takers had all they could do getting them through the turnstiles. The Baltimore contingent almost equaled the big crowd sent over on Thanksgiving day. The track is fast and the card guarantees good racing. Following are the scratches announced at 1:30 p.m.: In the first Whist, King Con, Rabunta, Cornwall, Garter Ban, Lady Teazle, Certain and East Kelson. In the fifth Florad and Kalif. In the sixth Harry McCoun, Florad and Himself. First race, five and a half furlongs—Del-

I told her how dutiful and affectionate he was and that he was especially dear to me now that I had lost him. I told her that he had left me for the first time when he was nineteen years of age. I described his affectionate parting and told of his promise to me to continue to be dutiful and exemplary. I told her that he wrote to me every week and opened his heart to me and related everything he knew, and that his letters were eminently satisfactory.

"The conduct of Mrs. Bonine made an impression on my mind that I shall never forget," declared Mr. Ayres. "She is a wife and a mother, and I expected sympathy from her. She interrupted my recital once to quote something from Browning. She smiled, and I thought it was a conceited smile. I told her that my boy had suffered and gone and that I was suf-

Mr. Ayres described his journey to this city upon learning of the death of his son. Just as he was starting from Michigan he was told something of the manner of the death. He did not look at a paper that night, but the following day purchased and read all the newspapers he could procure. When he reached Washington his mind was made up about the manner of death.

Mr. Ayres was about to continue his recital in a descriptive way, when he was interrupted by Mr. Gould, who wanted to know something of Mrs. Bonine's manner on the occasion in question.

"Her manner was calm, self-contained and non-committal," explained Mr. Ayres. "She was the nerviest woman I ever saw. She displayed no emotion and expressed no sympathy. Attorney Douglass said he had interposed no objection to the statements of Mr. Ayres, appreciating the nature of his af-fliction, and would not cross-examine him. After Mr. Gould had said that the statements of Mr. Ayres were entirely proper the witness was excused. Saying that he might want to call one witness later in regard to the slippers which Mrs. Bonine claims she wore the morning of May 15, Mr. Gould announced that the government would rest its case The usual recess was thereupon taken.

Dr. Schaeffer Recalled. At the afternoon session Dr. Schaeffer was recalled to the stand for a brief additional examination. United States Attorney Gould showed to the witness the slippers Mrs. Bonine said she wore the night of the tragedy. The witness said that he had made a careful microscopical examination of the slippers, but was unable to find the slightest traces of blood-stains. Attorney Douglass then conducted a searching examination of the witness in an effort to prove that the latter's attention had been called to blood stains between the sole and the upper by Mr. Keene, one of Mrs. Bonine's counsel. When his memory was refreshed Dr. Schaeffer admitted that he had detected comething of a reddish color there, though e could not be induced to say that it wa blood. When questions pertaining to Dr. Schaeffer's testimony given before the coroner at the inquest into Ayers' death were referred to the witness said he was willing to answer all questions, but he should protest against doing so while women were in the court room, as it would require the use of language unfit for females to hear. the case; except to say that the presumption of innocence that surrounded the defendant was not a mere formality, but should be given full weight. Continuing, Attorney Keene read from the opening address of Assistant United States Attorney Taggart the theory of the government regarding the killing. He went on to say that many of those who had been guests at the Kenmore had been before the jury as witnesses. Many more of them will appear as witnesses for the defense. The speaker declared that it was a com-pliment to Mrs. Bonine, to Ayres and to the others to say that they had selected so reputable a place as the Kenmore as a

Attorney Keene said that Mrs. Bonine was the recognized social leader at the hotel. She taught at least seven young men to dance. On the evenings the dances were given it was her custom to go from room to room in an endeavor to induce them to attend the dances.

"I regret the necessity of reviewing the conduct of one whose lips are sealed," explained Attorney Keene.

BONA-FIDE CIRCULATION.

A reference to the statement below will show that the circulation sworn to is a bona-fide one. It is easily possible for a newspaper with an elastic conscience to swell its legitimate circulation enormously, in order to decelve advertisers, by sending out thousands of papers to newsstands which are returnable, and which are, in fact, returned, but nevertheless are included in what purports to be an honest statement of circulation.

Intelligent advertisers, however, judge by results, and bogus circulations don't give them.

The family circulation of The Star is many thousands in excess of any other Washington paper.

There was nothing in the relations of Mrs. Bonine and Ayres that either was unwilling to break. Ayres did not desire to leave the hotel—it was with reluctance that he finally consented to do so and take up his residence at a fraternity club house.

"The velocity of bad habits was attaining speed," declared Attorney Keene. He asserted that the 4th of March Ayres was noticeably under the influence of liquor. Mrs. Bonine reproved him, as she did others. The Monday preceding the tragedy Ayres

The Monday preceding the tragedy Ayres danced with Mrs. Bonine.

What Defense Proposes to Establish. The defense would establish, stated the attorney, that a bloody hand raised the curtain from the inside of Ayres' room, and that the hand was Mrs. Bonine's; that the powder marks on the deceased tended to support the contention of the defense; that reputable physicians would testify that that reputable physicians would testify that the wounds received by Ayres could have been inflicted as claimed by the defense. Whatever may be the actual condition of the trade in copper, there is also the fact that two millionaire interests are in conflict and the battle is being fought out in the stock market. One faction claims a breach of faith on the part of the other and is seeking to ad-minister a proper rebuke. The other fac-tion is on the defensive and thus far has may be necessary, in order to cripple the latter, to cut the price of the raw product to the point of making mining an unprofita-MUST DROP THE MACHINE

> Much of the pessimism as to the future of the copper trade is directly traceable to the interests now seeking to control the Wall street end of the conflict. When the matter is finally adjusted, it is likely that a glant copper concern, seeking to control the copper markets of the world, by limiting production, will be disclosed. Mean-while the street is standing aside until of the selling movement has been reached,

Sentiment in the main is rather hopeful and higher prices in the railroad list are not improbable should the leaders succeed in divorcing the general list from the influences of the copper war. Several times during the present week there have been indications of an attempt to advance cer-tain issues, but at the new level there was no interest manifested by the public. The United States Steel shares demonstration in them is likely, once the market situation will justify activity.

The bank statement reflects a gain of $554,400 in lawful money all in legal tenders.

An increase of $7,106,200 in loans was an unexpected and an unwelcomed change. The deposits are larger by $7,711,000, and the reserve is decreased $1,072,350, or to a total of $13,414,575 above legal requirements. Gold shipments are to be expected during the coming week, and the unsettled condition incident to the holiday season is not likely to be omitted this year.

Royal Arch Chapter Holds Election. At a meeting of Washington Royal Arch Chapter of Free Masons, last night, A. J.

Fairall was elected high priest and H. M.

Gillman secretary. The grand visitation took place immediately afterward by the The members and their guests subsequently adjourned to Freund's, where an

Provision Wanted for Collecting Refuse From Business Houses. Warner Stutier, superintendent of the street cleaning department, has submitted a report to the District Commissioners on the one hundred or more letters and petitions received from prominent business men, hotels, etc., relative to the collection of ashes and refuse from business establishments of the District. The letters on the subject include one from the Business Men's Association, strongly urging the Commissioners to adopt measures which would provide such a service. Mr. Stutler calls attention to the fact that in the fall of 1900 he submitted a supplemental esti-mate covering the extension of the ash and refuse collection service to the business houses. The estimate was approved by the Commissioners, but Congress failed to pro-vide a sufficient appropriation. "In the absence of funds for this purpose," says the superintendent, "ashes and refuse have been removed from business places by private parties, and the work, therefore, is done without any supervision by this department, thus causing numerous complaints of the reckless manner in which complaints of the reckless manner in which the material in question is collected and hauled through the streets. Furthermore, the material is not separated, and the mixture, which includes paper and other combustible waste that should be taken to the crematory, is deposited on the public dumps and on vacant lots, and thus becomes a serious nuisance by reason of the fact that and on vacant lots, and thus becomes a serious nuisance by reason of the fact that it is blown on to the streets, and what re-mains on the dumps is frequently set on fire by mischievous persons after the dump-man has left for the day."

In conclusion, the superintendent says:
"The appropriation for the present fiscal year for the collection and disposal of city refuse was $115,000, or $35,000 less than the estimate submitted for the work. This latter sum of $35,000 is included in the estimates to Congress for the coming fiscal year, and I carnestly hope that the amount asked for will be granted, otherwise a proper and satisfactory service cannot be given."

MR. WHEELWRIGHT HERE,

Adviser of Commissioners in Planning for Municipal Hospital. Edwin M. Wheelwright, who has been retained by the District Commissioners as adviser in regard to the competition and selections of plans for the proposed municipal hospital, was in the city today for the first time since accepting the position and was in consultation with District Commissioners Macfarland and Biddle, Mr. Wheelwright's home is in Boston. He is regarded as an eminent authority on hospital buildings and the Commissioners were urged to secure his services by the American Institute of Architects. In company with Commissioner Biddle, Mr. Wheelwright visited the hospital site. His trip here is preliminary to issuing a new program of competition. The Commissioners issued an original program some months ago, but the architects of the country filed objections to it and, after a hearing, the Commissioners decided to modify it and to arrange a practically new scheme.
